

for forty years . . .

Forty years ago a party of flying instructors from the Royal Air Force School of Special Flying at Gosport left for the United States to demonstrate the revolutionary methods of teaching the Art of Flying devised by the late Colonel Smith-Barry.

Since those days it is fair to assert that every major change in instructional technique and flying-training equipment has been evolved in Britain, and in the course of time the World's air forces have followed suit.

And now

The Hunting Jet Provost TMk3, the latest primary/basic trainer—chosen by Royal Air Force Flying Training Command.

In full quantity production, it is also available for early delivery to other Air Forces.
